COE Expected to Save the Day

No Institutional Type Immune from Revenue Pressure on COE Growth

Questions from COE Members

- Should we adapt our graduate degrees into certificates for working professionals?
- Can we launch badges?
- How do we attract more international students?
- How can I attract more students with my existing non-credit portfolio?
- Can a degree completion program generate revenue quickly?

What Boards, Presidents, Provosts, and Faculty Are (Still) Buzzing About

MicroMaster's: awarded for one semester of coursework and an exam, can stack to a master's program

Georgia Tech's MS in Computer Science: hybrid between an online master's degree and a MOOC

What's Harder Today and Tomorrow

COE markets more saturated, and smaller than most estimates

Fear of falling behind creates rush to launch new product types

New emphasis on credentials themselves often overlooks unmet student needs

Our Roadmap

- 1 Briefing on Why COE Markets Are More Challenging Now
 - Talking points and slides to inform conversations on campus
- 2 Data and Evidence about What Markets to Serve
 - Frameworks for identifying and understanding student audience segments
 - Key product development business decisions

More Challenging in a Saturated Market

Conferrals Now Flat

Number of Master's Degrees Conferred by Year

Increasingly Expensive to Recruit

226%

Increased cost per click for graduate programs from 2009-2014, as high as $88 for "RN to BSN Online" and $69 for "O nline MBA"

Competition Even in "New" Fields

Fast Growth in New Data Science and Analytics Degrees...

...And More on The Way

- MS - Analytics
- MS - Business Analytics
- MS - Data Science

57%

Increase in COE market research requests on data analytics opportunities, 2015-2016

Favorable Climate for New Entrants

126% vs. 57%

Growth in post-bacc certificates awarded from 2001 to 2015, compared to master's degrees (conservative estimate)

The Washington Post

"The Future of Education is Virtual"

Pressure from Above and Below

Everyone from Board members to instructional designers asking:

- How are we responding to growing demand for short-format offerings? Do we need alternative credentials to compete?
- Why don't we have an alternative credential like our competitors? Are we falling behind?
- Will degrees still be relevant for jobs that don't yet exist?

What COE Members Are Asking:

- Market Demand Questions
 - Do employers value micro-credentials, digital badges, etc.?
 - Will our student audience really enroll in micro-degrees?
 - What's more important: the badge or the skill?

- Implementation Questions
 - How do we embed micro-credentials into for-credit programs?
 - How should we price alternative offerings?
 - What content is appropriate to group into a badge?

A Complex, Fragmented Military Audience

Less than 30% Eligible Use Benefits

Tuition Benefits Usage by Eligible Military-Affiliated Population

Specialized Needs Depend on Branch and Length of Service

Branches institute different educational requirements for advancement

Early and mid-career service members prioritize quick time to completion

Service members close to separation and veterans prioritize preparation for next career

Not Surprisingly, Conferrals Follow Funding Increases

Number of Credentials Awarded Using Post-9/11 GI Bill

The Forever GI Bill

- Expanded eligibility and removed expiration dates for benefits use
- Allows enrollment at non-college providers for technology programs (e.g., coding boot camp)
- Expanded eligibility makes private institutions more affordable for benefit users

Inside Out vs. Outside In

Last Century's "MOOC Mania"

"I believe that the motion picture is destined to revolutionize our educational system, and that in a few years it will supplant largely, if not entirely, the use of textbooks."
- Thomas Edison (1922)

Lessons from Other Industries: What Did The Wizard of Menlo Park Get Wrong?

Companies that continued to profit and grow throughout the boom-and-bust cycles of the last 20 years pursued an Outside-In Strategy, vs. Inside-Out.

Inside-Out Strategy Begins with Capabilities

What are we good at? What are our capabilities and offerings?

- How can we sell more? Gain more share? Improve productivity?
- Where can we apply our new productivity?

Outside-In Strategy Begins with Customer Needs

What customer value do we provide with what capabilities?

- Is our value proposition perceived as superior?
- How are the needs of our customers changing?
- What new competitors are anticipating and meeting these needs?

Lessons Learned from 3000+ Market Analyses

Regional Market Signals Reveal Student Needs

What Kind of Market Are You Really In?

Data to Determine Regional Market Signals Available in Regional Market Profiles

Industry Mix

Are there:

- Major shifts in the share of jobs in each industry?
- Industries likely to increase educational expectations?
- Industries susceptible to automation and/or digitalization?

Occupational Mix

Are there:

- Major shifts in the types of jobs available?
- Jobs susceptible to automation and/or digitalization?
- Jobs that are experiencing up-credentialing or increasing skill demands?

Unemployment

- How does regional unemployment compare to national?
- Is there an unemployed population that needs to return to school?
- How concerned are employed workers about performance in current jobs?

Educational Attainment

- How does educational attainment compare to regional employers' requirements?
- Is there an over- or under-supply of candidates at any level?

Income

- Can the regional audience afford educational costs?
- What income levels will new careers need to offer to be appealing?

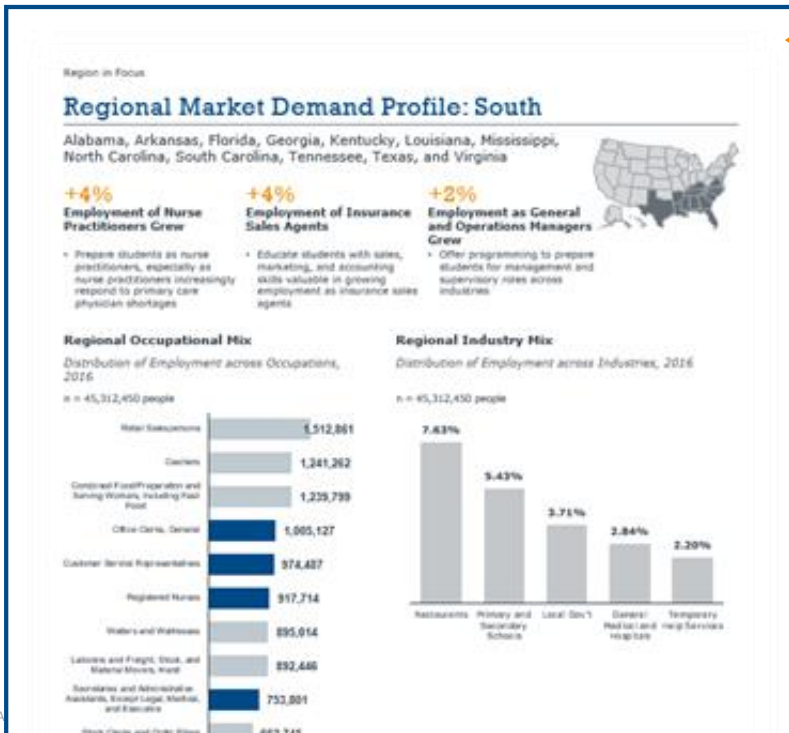

Sources Include both Real-Time and Structural Market Data:

Data and Analysis for Key Market Signals

- Immediately available on request
- Examine five U.S. regions
 - New England
 - Mid-Atlantic
 - South
 - Central
 - West
 and Canada
- Apply in program development, redesign, and recruitment
 - Inform Outside-In strategy with information on industry and occupational mix, unemployment, educational attainment, and income
 - Incorporate data on career opportunities into recruitment messages

Source: EAB interviews and analysis.

Three Main Types of Market Demand Analyses

What are our best program opportunities?

- Prioritize top 3-5 program opportunities
- Match to regional labor market needs
- Analyze market saturation data, where available
- Analyze peer programs

Is there enough employer demand to justify a new program launch?

- Quantify demand for jobs
- Identify in-demand job skills
- Identify top employers for specific jobs
- Analyze peer programs

What positioning and curricular elements can refresh or scale a program?

- Identify what positions students prepare for
- Offer in-demand skills to highlight in marketing messages
- Recommend new curricular elements
- Present job growth trends to highlight in marketing

Forthcoming Fall 2018

Answering Key Questions to Compete in Regional Markets:

- How do we identify and size potential student markets in our region?
- What signals will tell us whether markets are growing or declining?
- What resources, relationships, and specialized services will we need to be successful?
- What is the right strategy to optimally price and structure offerings for different audiences?
